PRESIDENT'S LETTER

On a cold and sunny December 14, 2025, the fifth-generation owners of the Ace Store welcomed members of the historical society to a warm and cheerful holiday gathering. Susan and Pat Newman have done a terrific job maintaining the building's character — the Ace Store is hardly changed from the 1970s. Thank you, Susan and Pat!

This issue of the newsletter recaps fall meetings and also looks forward to 2026 and celebrating the semiquincentennial (what a word!) of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. We hope to see you at our next meeting in April and wish you a very happy new year.

KEOKEE CHAPEL CEMETERY A Guided Walking Tour with Sandy Dietz

Sometimes just the word “history” can make people’s eyes glaze over. But never when you’re listening to Sandy Dietz, and especially as she takes you for a walk through Keokee Chapel Cemetery — a walk through the history of Paradise Township.

Sandy is the Genealogy Chair for PHS. Finding, learning about, and sharing information about people who came before is her passion.

On Sunday, October 5, 2025, she introduced us to dozens of neighbors we never knew, members of the earliest European families to move from the Nazareth area seeking opportunity in Paradise Valley — the Naumans, Wagners, Boorems, and Dornblasers.

A PARADISE TOWNSHIP ICON

It was a standing-room only crowd at our November 2, 2025, meeting for Peter Gonze's well-researched program titled the Story of Henryville House, Trout, and Fly Fishing.

This old inn has welcomed travelers, locals, and fly-fishing enthusiasts for generations. Once a stop for mule-skinners taking loads of coal to the canal in Easton and sportsmen chasing trout in the cool Pocono streams, the Henryville House was owned and operated by six generations of Henrys.

The Henryville House was demolished in 2002, but many people in the audience had worked there or attended school events, weddings, dinners, and other gatherings over the hotel's more than 150 years of serving locals and travelers. Using newspaper clippings, postcards, maps, Facebook postings, and other sources, Peter pieced together the history of the buildings and owners over the years — and also made the case that Henryville's location on the Paradise Creek was key to the birth and growth of fly fishing in America.

Many fascinating images and artifacts were shown. An image of the hotel from the eastern side of the Creek shows a countryside far different from today. The hills were clearcut, and instead of the forest we see today, cultivated fields and orchards filled the view. A dam and saw mill were large, important features on the creek. The nearby Henryville railroad station welcomed droves of city people every season seeking fresh air, clean water, and good fishing.

Peter shared photos of the Cardinales, a couple from New Jersey who celebrated their wedding here — and then returned over the decades with their growing family, ultimately celebrating their 50th anniversary at the Henryville House. One audience member spoke up to say she worked at the hotel and knew the Cardinales!

The earliest interments included George Adam Dornblaser, a veteran of the War of 1812 and son of a Revolutionary War Patriot, several Dornblaser infants and children, and George E. Dornblaser who died a prisoner of war in Salisbury Prison, North Carolina, during the Civil War. Later gravestones marked the resting places of relatives, friends, and local celebrities well-known to many in the large group who attended — Jabaras, many Naumans, Henrys, Golls, and DePues. Artist Edna Palmer Englehardt and Spanish poet Juan Penalver Laserna are buried here. Members of the Hill family — including actress Leila Hill, Rosalie Baker Osbaker, and George Koerner a WWII pilot and later superintendent of the cemetery — are also here.

Sandy's talk included details on the founding of the church and even how to protect and clean gravestones you may be responsible for. You can find an audio of the presentation and extensive notes on other, now permanent, residents of Paradise Valley on the PHS website www.paradisehistorical.org. PHS
